The College Place Police Department commissioned two new officers after a lengthy training process. Following thirty-one weeks of training, 19 weeks at the Basic Law Enforcement Academy followed by twelve weeks of field training, the officers were ready to be commissioned. Chief Tomaras swore in officer's Daniel Watkins and Dylan Schmick during last night's College Place City council meeting increasing their police staff to 14 officers.

Chief Troy Tomaras who was a former recruiter for the Washington State Patrol says they are fortunate to have such high caliber applicants in Watkins and Schmick. Both are highly educated and well-rounded individuals who are smart, friendly and community oriented. "They each bring a lot to our department says Tomaras".
